INSIGHTS

- Low sales of product categories have been recorded in January and February due to the fact that it is summer and temperatures are high.
- Sales started to increase (at 20% to 30%) from March to June because temperatures are dropping, winter is starting.
- High sales are recorded from Monday to Friday of the week, while weekends have recorded low sales.
- Peaks are between 06:00am and 10:00am, while low sales are recorded from 11:00am to 20:00pm, this could be that people prefer coffee when they start their day.
- Lower Manhattan and Astoria have recorded low sales as compared to Hell's Kitchen.
- Products categories that recorded high sales include coffee, tea, drinking chocolate and bakery. All other product categories have recorded low sales.
- Product categories including coffee, tea, drinking chocolate and bakery have recorded high sales during weekdays than weekend, probably because customers are not working on those days.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendations are grouped into the following

Operational efficiency

- Align labor with real-time traffic data (using POS reports) to prevent overstaffing during slow periods (e.g., afternoon).
- Align the labor when season changes to winter and also ensure that less staff is positioned in stores during weekends.
- Daily monitoring of high-waste items like milk and pastry to reduce spoilage, which directly impacts COGS
- Equipment Maintenance: Book regular, proactive servicing for espresso machines and grinders to prevent costly, unexpected downtime.

Marketing and promotions

- Offer free coffee to employees of local companies to build a loyal customer base, one business at a time
- Create an inviting atmosphere with fast, reliable Wi-Fi and ample power outlets to encourage remote workers to spend more.
- Ensure your profile is fully optimized with updated hours, photos, and high-quality images of drinks, as most customers search "coffee near me".
- Sell branded merchandise, packaged coffee beans, and brewing equipment.
- Implement a simple digital loyalty app to track behavior, offer personalized rewards, and encourage repeat visits, which can increase retention by 30-50%.

RECOMMENDATIONS CONTI...

Product performance

- identify high-margin items and promote them, such coffee, tea, bakery, drinking chocolate etc
- Reduce complexity by removing low-margin, slow-selling items to decrease waste and speed up service times.

CONCLUSION

Bright coffee shop is a business that operates in three stores located in different locations with one store generating highest income throughout. The stores operate from Sunday to Saturday. The company makes revenue from March to June (towards winter times) at a percentage 20 and 30% with the peak hours between 06:00 and 10:00 mid-morning. The coffee shops sell 9 product categories which has 29 product types, with only 4 product categories generating highest income. To ensure growth and performance the in performance and revenue, the proposed recommendations must be implemented.
